County favors consolidation

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors at its meeting Monday urged the Hancock County and Bay-Waveland School Boards to consolidate their two systems.

Supervisor President Ronald Cuevas said, they are making the recommendation as a response to pressure from their constituents, other county agencies and the school systems to take a position concerning the controversy over the proposed Stennis Airpark location of the county's new junior/senior high school.

The Stennis site has been the center of controversy recently, with one faction arguing that the site isn't safe and would hamper industrial growth at the airpark.

Supporters argue that high school students would be offered expanded educational opportunities by having the school adjacent to Pearl River Junior Colleges Vocational-Technical Complex already at the airpark.

"Our primary concern is that both school systems affect an immediate consolidation for the entire county. Based on factors of money, efficiency and need, we feel consolidation is the only answer that would further the quality of education in Hancock County," Cuevas said.

He recommended that the school be built somewhere east of the airpark near Highway 603.

PRC President Dr. Ted Alexander, Bay-Waveland Superintendent of Education Roger Oge and Hancock Superintendent Terrell Randolph all feel that the vo-tech center should be moved to the within walking distance of the new high school. Provided the state would allow such a move, the supervisors would help in whatever way necessary to facilitate such a move, Cuevas said.

The county school system already has begun work on the Stennis site for their new $8.2 million high school near the vo-tech center.

"We feel the two boards have a responsibility to show the taxpayers that their major concern is the education of students and proper fiscal management. We

Supervisors announce plans for new building, better roads

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors at their meeting Monday announced plans for two street improvement projects and a multipurpose building to be occupied by county agencies.

After the county failed to receive a Community Development Block Grant for the construction of the building, the supervisors decided the need for the building warrants the county borrowing money for its construction, according to board President Ronald Cuevas.

"We don't know exactly how much it will cost yet, but we estimate it will be in the range of $1 million and will be paid off over a 15-year period," he explained.

"The building is absolutely necessary. We didn't get the grant so we have to do it ourselves. If the county is going to grow we have to have this facility," Beat Five Supervisor Michael Ladner said.

The building will house social services agencies, including the health, welfare, human resources and unemployment departments, which currently are inadequately quartered at various scattered locations around Bay St. Louis.

Bay St. Louis Architect Michael Reeves has been hired by the county to design the building which is to be constructed at the Hancock County Fairgrounds. He will also assist county engineer in designing road improvements on Longfellow Drive near the entrance to the building site.

A $1 million road resealing project announced Monday, scheduled to begin in March or April, will resurface from 115 to 125 miles of currently blacktopped roads that are "in desperate need of repair from

Two referendums ask voters for unit system, appointed schools head

BY DENA BISNETTE

Along with all the various national, state, special and local elections, the Nov. 8 ballot will include two referendums.

Unlike constitutional amendments, which often include several paragraphs of text, the referendums consist only of a title and a question the voter can answer yes or no. The two referendums deal with the unit system and appointment of the county superintendent of education.

According to Election Commission Chairman Charles Gottschalk, both referendums were authorized through the 1988 session of the Mississippi Legislature, but their effects are expected to be different.

The county unit system referendum gives each county a choice, authorized by the majority of voters.

The ballot reads, "Unit System of County Government: Do you want to require the county to operate under the countywide system of road administration?"

Gottschalk said the referendum was authorized by the same legislation that created the new purchasing system recently implemented by the county to comply with State Department of Audit procedures.

The bill also required a few other matters related to the reorganization of county government, most of which Hancock County had already complied with, Board of Supervisors President Ronald Cuevas stated last month when the new purchasing procedures were implemented and a county administrator was named.

The second referendum, titled "Abolishment of the Office of Elected County Superintendent of Education, in Favor of an Appointed County Superintendent of Education," asks voters, "Are you for or against abolishing the elective office of superintendent of education, to be replaced by superintendent to be appointed by your local school board?"

Gottschalk explained that the choice is not left up to the majority of voters in the individual counties as the unit system referendum will be.

Instead, the vote on the county school superintendent appointment will be considered a statewide vote, and Hancock County will have to comply with the decision of a majority of voters from all over Mississippi.

While the questions the two referendums raise may have interesting effects, particularly in view of the way the unit system referendum is worded, Gottschalk said he does not expect the two items to create much interest at the polls on election day.

With the two referendums on the end of a ballot that includes a presidential race, a local state senator running for Congress and two regular county school board elections, Gottschalk said he still feels most of the interest will be in the two special elections for supervisor.

The two special elections, in Beat Three and Beat Four, were called to replace supervisors who resigned following "Operation Pretense" convictions. Both of the supervisors who resigned had been re-elected, one after indictment and one before.

The Beat Three race includes 12 candidates while the Beat Four race includes nine.

RAILS TO TRAILS

Across the country, local communities are recycling abandoned railroad routes to answer the growing need for outdoor recreation. According to National Wildlife magazine, railroad beds make ideal trails. They run through cities, farmers and fields. More than 150 rail-trails contribute thousands of miles to the country's trail system.

POLLUTION FIGHTERS

In cities around the world there's a growing appreciation for the role of trees as the guardians of fresh air. National Wildlife magazine reports that a healthy urban forest has awesome air scrubbing potential. Researchers estimate a single acre of sycamore trees could help capture 15 tons of pollutants a year.

"have no authority to do anything to persuade or dissuade any decision they might take, but we challenge them to take this responsibility on their shoulders," Cuevas said.

The supervisors have offered an alternate solution that they feel could work. Now the boards need to decide what they need to do.

"This is where we stop. If it winds up with consolidation, we're happy. If it doesn't wind up, we're out of it," Cuevas concluded.

Both Randolph and Oge agreed that consolidation is a good idea. Randolph said, however, that it would take several years before total consolidation could take place and suggested that the two boards work together to build one high school.

Oge said, the project deserved serious study before one school is built.

Some of the advantages of consolidated school systems indicated by Oge and Randolph include:

- Unified approach to serving children's needs.
- One tax base for entire system.
- More efficient organization throughout system from administration to maintenance.
- Uniform and expanded curriculum for all students.
- Elimination of student transfer problems.
- An expanded offering of extra curricular activities and stronger athletics teams.
- Duplication of facilities would be eliminated.

Some disadvantages include:

- Many legal, financial and educational hurdles must be cleared.
- Many people have a natural resistance to change.
- Possible less interaction between students and teachers.

one end of the county to the other and from one side to the other. Every area of the county will be affected," Cuevas said.

The project will be budgeted over an eight year period.

A $400,000 Beach Road resurfacing project is also scheduled for this spring.

"We probably may not be able to complete the entire road..., but we can probably can do better than 50 percent," he said.

A recent meeting with a field engineer from Phillips Petroleum netted the county good information on how to preserve the road after it has been resurfaced, Cuevas said.

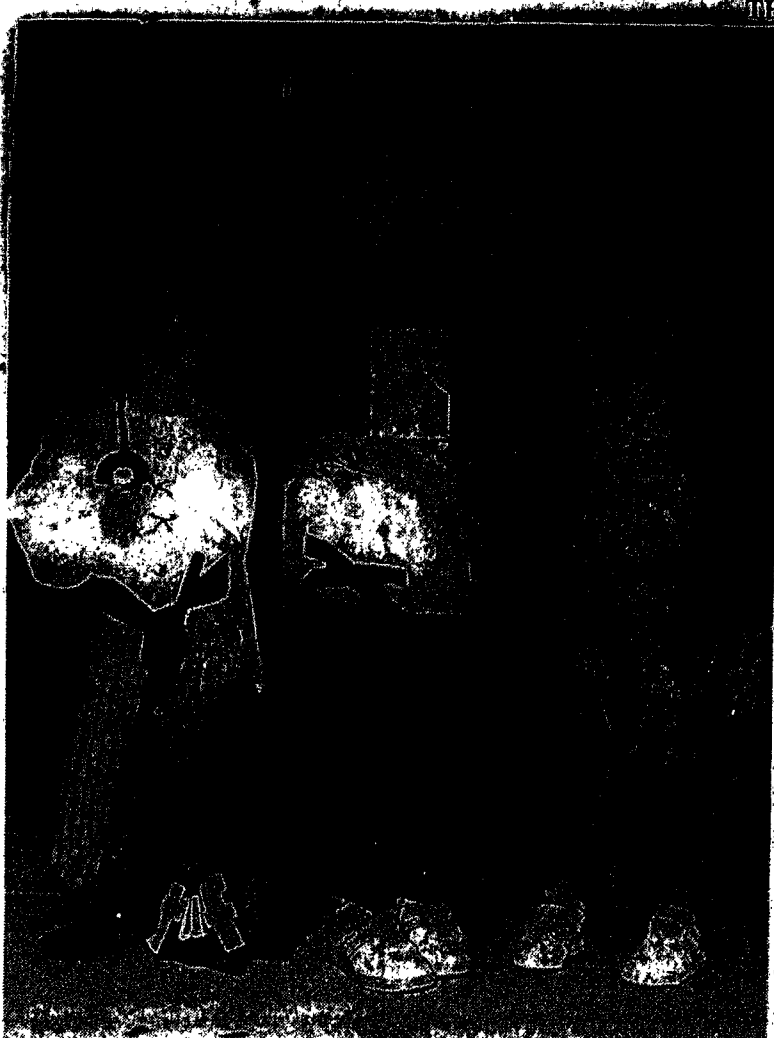

He also pointed out that no tax increase will be necessary, that the projects are already figured into the new county budget. The only budget increases were for the sanitary landfill and law enforcement, he said.

Several sources of revenue, including oil and gas and government revenue sharing programs, are no longer available, so county agencies will have to work harder at operating within their budgets, Cuevas stated.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

This week will be final week of regular season play for local high school football teams.

The test of the season will be Friday night for Irvin Favre's Hancock North Central Hawks.

The Hawks will travel to d'Iberville to be tested by the Warriors and Hancock's unblemished record will be on the line.

Hancock has played good football this season, but they will have to be really up for the Warriors.

d'Iberville over the years have been big winners and now have moved up and are playing the top high school football teams in the state.

We know the Hawks have been having good fan participation this season and it is hoped many of the supporters will follow Hancock to d'Iberville.

You can be assured that d'Iberville will have their supporters in full force.

As a final game of the season, the Rock-A-Chaws of St. Stanislaus will play host to the Tigers of Bay High.

This should be a very good game as both the Tigers and Rocks need to improve their records.

We feel supporters for the Rock-A-Chaws and Tigers should arrive early if they expect to find a seat.

The Pirates of Pass Christian will close their regular season at home when they host the Long Beach Bearcats.

This may be the year Pass Christian has been waiting for as the Bearcats are not really up to regular play this season.

With a good team effort the Pirates could notch another season win.

We hope to see you at the games on Friday. Good luck to all teams.

The Bay St. Louis Rotary Club's annual fund raising dinner is set for tonight at Christ Episcopal's Virginia Hall, 912 S. Beach Blvd.

The dinner will be from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. and food preparation will be compliments of Robert's Reef.

Proceeds from the dinner will be used by the Rotary Club for community activities.

There will be take-outs and dinners are for a donation of $5 each.

Herb Dubuisson, president, said he is hoping there will be a large turnout for the dinner as Rotary supports programs such as Little League, Senior Citizens, Babe Ruth Baseball, Local Firefighters, and many more worthy community programs.

We hope to see you at the Rotary dinner.

Members of Diamondhead's Community Church and Diamondhead's Sewing Group have been very busy dressing dolls and teddy bears for the Salvation Army's Christmas Toy program.

Mrs. Robert Pflugfelder organizer of the groups, reports some 47 dolls and teddy bears have already been completed.

She said all the ladies are really enjoying the project which makes Christmas a joyous occasion for some deserving children.

We are glad to hear about the good job these residents of Diamondhead have done.

Don't forget the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's political forum for District Four Supervisor tonight at 7 p.m.

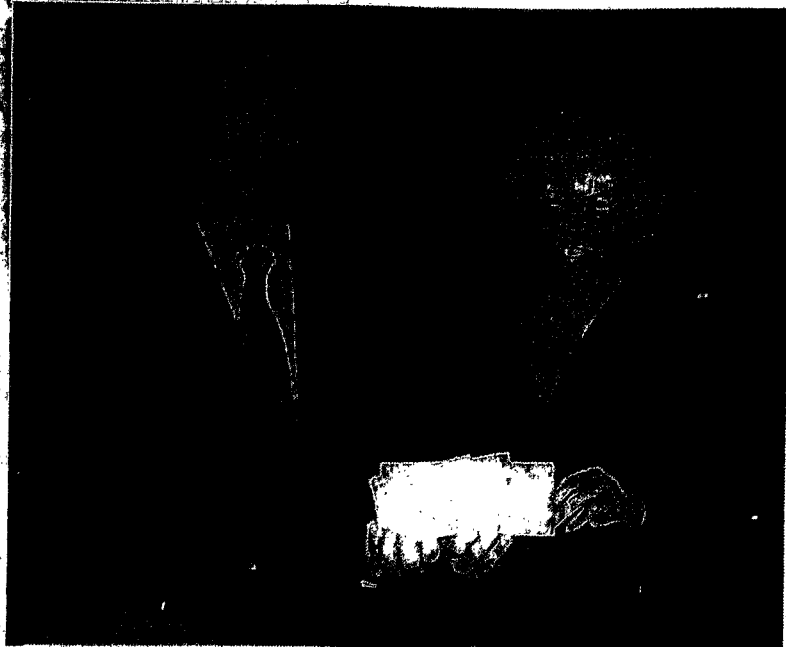

The forum will be held at the Hancock County Fairgrounds on Longfellow Road.

Tuesday is election day and we are sure many of you would like to hear the candidates comment on the five questions which have been submitted to them.

On Friday night there will also be a political forum at the Diamondhead Country Club at 7 p.m.

This forum will be for candidates for District Three supervisor and school board, Congress and Senate who have been invited.

Remember, Tuesday, November 8, is Election Day.

SOUTH CENTRAL BELL DONATION—Tim Ryan, left, presents a record donation from South Central Bell to Clarice Gustin, director of the United Way of Hancock County. Ryan, a Bay St. Louis resident, is South Central Bell's Mississippi Gulf Coast District assistant manager and community affairs manager. The total of the gift will be over $1,500 from corporation and employee payroll deductions for the 1988 Hancock County United Way drive. The drive was successful because South Central Bell and the Communication Workers of America worked together for the United Way and there was a 100% participation by the Hancock employees. The President's Column

Competence in government accounts for improvements

Not long ago, a certain candidate for president said that "this election is not about ideology—it is about competence." I would like to take a few moments to talk about competence—competence in the government and what we have done to improve it over the last eight years.

When George Bush and I arrived in Washington, we found a grossly mismanaged federal government. To give you one example, in the last year of the previous administration, federal spending was increasing at the dizzying rate of 17 percent a year, which is to say almost two times as fast as the economy as a whole. Now, with the cost of the government growing that fast, you would think those in charge would have been keeping track of exactly how each dollar was spent.

But in fact, at that time, the government did not know until long after the fact how much was spent. And even when it knew how much it had spent, it could not say for certain exactly what it had spent your money on. This—along with excessive regulations; deteriorating services; evidence of rampant waste, fraud, and abuse in a number of agencies—pointed to a government that was too big and out of control.

Look at how we changed things. Start with excessive regulations. We set up a task force headed by Vice President Bush. Its job: identify and eliminate unnecessary federal regulations.

The results: we have cut by over 600 million man-hours a year the time that businesses, state and local governments, and you and I as ordinary citizens have to spend filling out federal forms and doing other federal paperwork. This achievement has been even more important than many of us realize.

A leading historian has written that "government intervention and regulation" was among the principal reasons for America's economic stagnation in the 70's. Under George Bush's leadership, we lifted the weight of excessive regulations, and that played a major role in getting our economy to really fly.

We also set up the "private Sector Survey on Cost Control." Led by Peter Grace and almost 200 top business executives, this commission spent months looking at every part of the government, finding out where modern business practices could eliminate waste, fraud, and abuse in the government.

When they were through, they had come up with 2,478 suggestions and almost every recommendation we could put into effect without congressional action has been implemented—and we have saved close to $80 billion. And we are hoping that the next Congress will pitch in and do its part.

Within the administration, we set up the Council on Integrity and Efficiency. Thanks to the council, the government has saved or put to better use over $100 billion in the past six years. For example, we have put in computers so that we can now identify "bid rigging" contractors, or catch con artists who take out loans from many federal agencies and default on all of them.

And we have initiated the largest management improvement program ever—Reform '88. By installing government-wide cash, credit, financial, personnel, payroll, and productivity systems, we have brought common sense to the way we handle over $2 trillion that pass through the government annually.

Most of these improvements are now up and running—right on schedule—and the result is that we are now doing a much better job than has ever been done of managing every single dollar the government spends to make sure it is spent in the very best way it can be.

As a result of our many reforms, the government does all its many jobs better and faster. For example, in 1980, it took seven weeks to get a Social Security card; now it takes ten days. It took 43 days to get a passport; now it takes 10 days.

It took 75 days for an export license; now it is five days to some countries and no more than 17 days for any. And processing a claim for a Title 1 Department of Housing and Urban Development loan has dropped from 100 days to 22.

Yes, the results speak for themselves. But there are other results, too—results that show competence. These results include the longest peacetime economic expansion on record, more new jobs created than Europe and Japan combined while cutting inflation to a third of what it was and interest rates in half.

Come to think of it, I will stack our record of competence against any, any day of the week. Because, you see, our ideas work. And they work for you.

Yes, the leader of the other ticket ways ideology doesn't matter, but of course it does. He says he's on your side, but he's wearing the liberal team's tax and spend jersey.

Maybe it is just that—4th quarter, 10 points down, with the two minute warning sounding—he wants you to think he has switched sides. But he hasn't changed his ideas. Look at the record and you can see who is on whose side.

Q. Which is older, the Mississippi Army National Guard or the state of Mississippi?

A. The Guard. Territorial Governor Winthrop Sargent issued an order on September 8, 1798 calling for the militia to be organized. Mississippi gained statehood in 1817, 19 years later, becoming the 20th state in the union.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Hard work, positive attitude keep Taylor in the running

As football fans filed into the football stadium on the University of Southern Mississippi campus, the handsome, earnest young man in tie and shirtsleeves handed out what politicians call "push" cards.

"I'm Gene Taylor...I'm running for Congress from the Fifth District...I hope you'll vote for me," said the candidate, offering his card to people as they scurried by.

"I remember your face, I'll vote for you," said a smiling young woman in her USM black and gold school colors. "I'm a die-hard Democrat, I'm going to vote for you," said a balding 40-ish man who said he lived in Biloxi.

Another man headed to the game, spotting this reporter standing nearby, sidled up and offered this comment: "I know Gene Taylor...if hard work will do it, he's going to win."

However, the polls and the smart money have been saying differently.

Throughout most of the fall, Taylor, 35, a two-term state senator from Bay St. Louis who carries the Democratic Party's hopes in the 5th Congressional District, has run as a decided underdog against Harrison County Sheriff Larkin Smith, the Republican standard-bearer.

The heavily bank-rolled Smith, 44, former Gulfport police chief now serving his second term as sheriff of Harrison County, is seeking to keep the coastal-Southeast Mississippi congressional seat in GOP hands where it has resided with U.S. Rep. Trent Lott the past 16 years.

Taylor, who has stressed the fact that he is the only candidate with legislative experience in a race for a legislative post, had raised only around $80,000 up until two weeks ago, some five times less than his GOP foe.

Some earlier polls had shown Smith with leads ranging from 20 to 40 points. But independent observers of the congressional race said last week that the race has "definitely tightened," and they conceded that Taylor has gotten an amazing amount of mileage on a small budget.

Taylor tells of a visit he had from a National Democratic fundraiser in April who told him that he could tap into traditionally lucrative Democratic money sources if he came out for abortion, against aid to the Nicaraguan contras and against gun control.

"I was appalled. I told him I can't do any of that, because that was not my position on any of those issues," Taylor relates. As a result, he said, "that cut off the big money" from certain national Democratic sources.

He has gotten some money out of labor organizations, Taylor says, and "the teachers have helped." Public education, he points out, is one of the top priorities of his legislative career, "so I feel I have earned the teachers' support."

In answer to some critics who have contended he is not a team player in the Legislature, Taylor says, "I was very much a team player in helping the Jackson County delegation get the funds for the Navy home port. I was a team player with the Harrison County delegation in getting state funds for deepening the Gulfport harbor."

Taylor considers his biggest legislative coup was as lead author of the floor amendment that created the new Mississippi Technology Transfer Center at what is now the Stennis Space Center near Bay St. Louis. "There are now 240 to 280 new jobs as a result of the transfer center," he said.

Taylor and Smith have had a couple of heated debates on television, the latest of which took place last week when Smith became riled by questions raised by a reporter having to do with Smith's career from 1966 to 1972 with the Pearl River County sheriff's office.

The reporter's question about an incident in 1971 when an out of state rock band was arrested on minor charges and brought to the Pearl River County jail where their hair was forcibly cut brought an angry response from Smith as "hunting trash." Smith has stressed that voters must consider that the next occupant of the White House is going to be George Bush. "When I go to the White House," Smith says, "I can knock on that door and talk to the president of the United States."

Taylor says Smith "Has been a good sheriff, and I think he should continue to be a sheriff. I've been in the legislative branch and I'm asking for a promotion in that field."

When he won his Senate seat in 1983, "I did it in the last week," Taylor says, "and I feel that way again."

CORRECTION: In last week's column relative to the new county unit system law, it should have read that the bond of the county road manager is set at $50,000, not the salary.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Open and shut case: bad sign for business

To the Editor:

It is an open and shut case that the Bay-Waveland business community needs a lesson in how to use those little, but very important, signs that say "Open" on one side, and "Closed" on the other side.

There is nothing more irritating than driving up to a business which has the "Open" sign out, getting out of your car, walking to the door, and having your nose inform the rest of your body through shock waves that the door is not at all "open." Hey, folks, the sign is for a purpose—to save your customers from inconvenience and/or embarrassment.

Another popular practice by our beloved area merchants is to open the store and to leave the sign which says "Closed" beaming out at the parking lot. Then, when all of those rent-paying dollars go driving by to competitors in other towns who know when they are "Open" and when they are not, Bay-Waveland merchants blame their deficits on the sagging economy or the Chamber or the weather.

One final inexplainable phenomenon which is now common in no less than ten businesses from Waveland Avenue to the Bay Bridge is two signs up, one says "Open," the other says—you guessed it—"Closed." No comment!

Now, we are relative newcomers to the area, and if we may speak "Openly," we are not very impressed with this type of "Open and Shut" operation. It is a bad sign for local business. Cmon, Bay-Waveland Business, let's get a personal campaign to do it right and we will all rejoice together when those cash registers begin to fly "Open."

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Rice, that long-time staple which so often 'saves the dinner' in Southern cookery, is the basis of so many fine dishes that there's little point in striving to list them all.

Rice, cooked with your own homemade stock, or bouillon granules, or left-over gravy-sauce, or what have you, with onions and such, is a delicious way to stretch many dishes.

Cooked in this manner, the rice has rather a "meaty" taste, and needs not very much meat or additional sauce to make a dish for a quick meal.

And to my "chinchy"—that means somewhat on the cheap or extra-thrifty side, more or less—gourmet school of cookery, chicken livers are one of the best extras to add to that rice-and-such to turn out a gourmet meal of sorts.

The cheapest way, of course, is to make it a practice to freeze the livers each time you buy a chicken, and in not too much time you'll have an almost "free" meal. Or, you may, of course, buy the livers from meat case or freezer. Here's a combination, a tasty stretchable:

CHICKEN LIVER PILAF

Approximately 1 lb. chicken livers, give or take what's on hand

4 Tbsp. butter or margarine

2 medium onions, chopped

6 Tbsp. sherry (I prefer dry sherry)

1 to 1½ cups uncooked (raw) rice

3 cups broth or bouillon as above

3 Tbsp. olive oil
Pepper, hot pepper sauce, salt to your taste

Heat the oil in a heavy saucepan (for me, a black iron pot) and add the chopped onion and barely brown the onions, leaving them transparent, then add the raw rice. Stir over rather medium heat until the rice grains start to brown here and there in the pot, then add the stock or bouillon—which you've bought to a boil while the rice is reaching the proper "doneness."

Stir it all well, cover the pot and turn the fire very, very low—"lower than low" as our family cook used to say, and let it cook for 20 minutes or so, then fluff with a fork so that the grains stay separate.

While that's cooking, of course, cut the chicken livers into halves or quarters, as you prefer—the smaller you cut them, the farther the dish will stretch! Cook just a few minutes in the butter, as liver of any sort is much more flavorful and tender when it's not overcooked, then add the sherry and seasonings to taste, along with the green onions, oftentimes, I prefer to sprinkle the green onions, raw, over the rice and livers.

At any rate, serve the livers over the rice, or mound the rice in the center of a platter and surround with the livers. Strips of pimiento and/or bell (green) pepper add to the eye-appeal. (Six to eight servings.)

POW medals to be awarded

Earlier this year, Frank C. Carlucci, secretary of defense, announced that the Prisoner of War Medal authorized by Congress is now available for issue to former prisoners of war.

Former prisoners of war from around the area will gather at Keesler Nov. 19 for a special ceremony and be presented with their medal.

A student parade will coincide with the medal presentation which gets underway at 9 a.m. on the parade grounds.

The medal will be issued to any person who was taken prisoner of war and held captive after April 5, 1917. Defense records indicate approximately 142,000 service members qualify, from action during World War I, World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

Former prisoners of war, or their next of kin, may apply for the medal by writing to the military record center of the service in which they were a part during their imprisonment. Application forms are available from the military services or a variety of veterans organizations and other public service agencies. A full form number 1-800-735-7441 has been created to help veterans and their families obtain the medal. For more information about the Keesler medal ceremony, call CMSgt Thomas E. Worley at 377-1665.

THE LOCAL CENTURY III award goes to Hancock North Central senior Riva Brown of Picayune. She now will compete on the state level for one of two $1,500 scholarships and a trip to the Century III Leaders National Conference in Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia. The Century III Leadership program, sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals and funded by the Shell Companies Foundation, Inc., is designed to bring together and recognize students who show both strong leadership abilities and an interest in the future of America. Competitors were judged on the basis of leadership skills, school and community involvement, a current events exam, and a projection for innovative leadership that challenges America in its third century. MIGRAINE
Also called sick headaches, a typical migraine attack begins with a dull throbbing ache in one area of the head and progresses to a piercing pain. These torturous attacks may be preceded by a change in the field of vision—a flickering before the eyes, flashes of light or a partial blocking of the vision. They are sometimes accompanied by nausea or vomiting. They are seldom relieved by aspirin. Their duration is from 2 to 48 hours.

Navy communicators meet at Stennis Space Center

A three-day conference of Navy communications personnel recently convened at the Stennis Space Center. The occasion was the fourth annual Naval Oceanography Command Communications Conference. More than 40 Navy communicators from as far away as Guam and Spain gathered for briefings and discussions on current projects and emerging technological development.

Rear Admiral James E. Koehr, commander, Naval Oceanography Command, opened the conference on Tuesday, Oct. 25, by observing that the attendance at the conference had increased dramatically over the years.

In attendance at this year's conference were representatives from most major Navy headquarters commands in the Washington, D.C. area; the staffs of fleet commanders in chief in the Atlantic, Pacific and Europe; as well as from the Department of Defense and other Armed Forces agencies. Koehr stressed that the challenge conferees faced was to increase the speed and timeliness of weather and oceanography broadcasts to Navy ships at sea.

The second day of the conference was formally opened with an address by Rear Admiral Richard F. Pittenger, oceanographer of the Navy. Pittenger recounted his experiences as an at-sea commander in relying on Navy communications to support his operational requirements.

He challenged conference attendees to find ways of increasing environmental communications support and, at the same time, reducing the load on existing and future communications assets. He stressed the need for additional "smart" computer terminals with high storage capability aboard Navy ships so that sufficient environmental data would be available in case lines of communications with supporting shore establishments were cut due to hostile actions or other disruptions.

This was Pittenger's second visit to the Mississippi Gulf Coast since he assumed his duties as oceanographer on Sept. 1.

The Naval Oceanography Command, which is headquartered at the Stennis Space Center, manages more than 60 field activities providing support to Naval Forces operating throughout the world. These activities are interconnected by a network of data collection, exchange and transmission links.

A MESSAGE

To the voters of District 3 and Hancock County.

I not only want to be your supervisor, but your friend as well. Someone that you can talk to any time, and especially if you are having problems with any county functions. Hopefully together we can solve some of our problems. You know your areas better than any one. I want to know your views - two heads are better than one. We need to get the most out of tax dollars to support and better all our county functions.

Smokeout opens door for FreshStart

For many smokers, the Great American Smokeout is the first day of what they hope will be the rest of their lives—as new non-smokers. But how will they make it through Days Two, Three, Four, etc.?

Perhaps by making a "FreshStart," say local American Cancer Society volunteers. FreshStart is the society's group support program to help smokers "unlearn" their smoking behavior. The Harrison County Unit of the society will offer the program beginning on Monday Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. at the Biloxi Regional Medical Center.

"Although the majority of smokers quit on their own without using clinics or classes, we have found that a sizable number need the added support and structure a group can offer," said Sue Whiting, the FreshStart facilitator.

"Our FreshStart sessions use trained ex-smokers who can understand and appreciate what the would-be quitter is going through," she said.

The FreshStart program consists of four one-hour group sessions in a two-week period. The classes help smokers identify some of the reasons they smoke and anticipate and prepare for difficulties in quitting, Whiting said.

"This program is not a magic spell," she said. "It won't make your desire for cigarettes or your cherished rituals disappear. But it does offer the smoker who's serious about quitting a real chance to be successful in the attempt."

For smokers who prefer to go it alone, the FreshStart program is available on home video and audio cassettes, as well as self-help paperback.

The video, FreshStart: 21 Days to Stop Smoking, features actor/comedian Robert Klein.

For more information about the Harrison County Unit's FreshStart program, or other smoking cessation programs and materials, call Barbara Radtke, with the local American Cancer Society office on DeBary Road at 896-7024.

Final week to vote absentee

Monday, Oct. 31, marked the beginning of the end with regard to absentee voting in the presidential election," stated Secretary of State Dick Molpus.

"Absentee ballots must be received by circuit clerks within the next eight days—beginning Oct. 31 and ending on Monday, Nov. 7—to count in the November general election," added Molpus.

Ballots may be voted in person up until noon on Saturday, Nov. 5. Ballots cast by mail must be received by circuit clerks no later than 5 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 7.

"The next eight days are crucial for those who intend to vote absentee, whether they vote in person or by mail," said Molpus. He noted that there is still time for qualified electors to vote absentee ballot if they act now.

There are two ways to vote absentee ballot, with different deadlines depending on the method chosen. A voter may cast an absentee ballot by going to the circuit clerk's office in person, any day from now until noon on Saturday, Nov. 5. One may also vote absentee by mail. An application must be requested from the circuit clerk and completed and returned as quickly as possible. Once the ballot has been received, it must be completed and mailed back in time for the clerk to receive it by 5 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 7.

Not everyone may vote absentee. A registered voter is eligible if he meets one of the following conditions: a member of the Armed Forces, Merchant Marine, Red Cross, or a civilian attached to any of the preceding groups and stationed outside the U.S.; a student, teacher, or administrator; a Congressional delegate; if one's job takes the voter more than 50 miles away from his or her county on election day, or if the voter is the spouse or the dependent of any of the above; if the voters is temporarily living outside the U.S. or working in interstate transportation, offshore employment, or on a boat or other watercraft; if the voter is physically disabled, or if he or she is the spouse, parent or dependent of a physically disabled person who must be with that person in a hospital more than 50 miles away from the county on election day. Finally, all voters age 65 or older can vote by absentee ballot.

WORKING FOR OUR FUTURE!

FUTURE - The Hancock County area expects a growth in population in the future that boggles the mind. It could be a new era of prosperity. It could make our city a better place to live and work. It could insure a pleasing future for our children. But that's a pipedream the way county government works. We're hardly keeping pace with the present. It can be a reality by putting a dynamic man with fresh ideas to work in county government.

Kelvin Schulz will do many things as your supervisor - but two points on his agenda are uppermost. 1. Improve county services now. 2. Plan for our future so that those county services can adequately meet the demands and growth of the future. Schulz will get it done.

Herring named director of phobia clinic

Peter Herring has been appointed as director of the Phobia Clinic at Gulf Coast Psychotherapy Centers.

Before joining the centers earlier this year, he was executive director of the Gulf Coast Family Counseling Agency for many years.

Enthusiastically looking forward to starting an intensive treatment program for the treatment of agoraphobia, phobias and anxiety disorders later this month, Herring has just returned from a four-day seminar in Boston where he interacted with the foremost experts in the field of anxiety.

Says medical director Emanuel G. DeFraitas Jr., MD, "We're lucky to have someone as capable as Herring right here on the Coast. None is better qualified to lead this clinic than he."

Herring is a member of the Academy of Certified Social Workers. He received both his undergraduate degree and his master of social work from Tulane University.

The Gulf Coast Psychotherapy Centers are full service private mental health clinics with offices in Ocean Springs, Biloxi and Mobile, Ala.

Herring will also be participating in a seminar on "Anxiety, Phobias and Agoraphobia," on Tuesday, Nov. 15 from 7-9 p.m. This free program will be at the Popp's Ferry Library in Biloxi. Pre-registration is a must due to the size of the room.

I worked hard to see each of you last election and received a good vote of confidence. I will work hard to get the most and best for our tax dollars, to support and upgrade all our roads and all county functions, and to get more industry and businesses to locate in Hancock County to have more jobs for our local people.

I was the only candidate in the race who was interested enough to run last election. I put up some signs last year, and after the election, I took all of my signs down and will do so again this year, win or lose. I'd rather you get to know me through personal contact rather than by my name on a sign.

I would like to thank each one of you for your kindness shown to me during this campaign. I will be a good conscientious and honest supervisor.

Preparing game requires care

By Linda S. Moore
From the fields to the kitchens, preparing wild game for the table requires experience and knowledge for the safest and tastiest results.

Nelda Starks, nutrition education specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said some amount of field dressing is necessary for most game before bringing it home for complete cleaning. Some type of cooler should be available to the hunter.

"For the best quality, it is important that wild game be dressed as soon as possible after killing," Starks said. "Big game such as deer must be bled and field dressed immediately."

The nutritionist said weather will affect the length of time game will safely keep "from the kill to the cooler." During warmer hunting days, game will need cooling down sooner than during the colder months.

Smaller game such as rabbits, birds and squirrels especially need to be kept cool over an extended period of time like a day-long hunt. Small game stored in mass after killing increases heat and danger.

Starks said opinions vary on whether or not aging meat is necessary to tenderize game. Some believe that freezing will adequately take the place of aging.

"If a person wants to age their meat, it is best to be done in a refrigerated locker below 40 degrees (F), rather than in a shed or on a tree," Starks said. She recommended keeping meat refrigerated two to three days, then freezing for the best quality.

Certain qualities of wild game must be taken into consideration during preparation, Starks said.

To remove some of the gamey or wild taste, soak overnight in a vinegar and water or salt water solution. With deer, fat can be trimmed to reduce the strong flavor.

"However, people should learn to appreciate the wild taste rather than cover it up," Starks said.

Remember, when cooking the meat, that wild game is by nature a tougher meat. Therefore, use a cooking method that will aid in tenderizing.

"Any kind of game needs to be served either very hot or very cold for the best taste," Starks said. Starks said nutritionally, wild game generally has less fat than other meats. Deer, specifically, tends to be lower in fat and cholesterol than beef.

Heavy frosts carry grazing cautions

By Patti Drapala

Mississippi Livestock producers who graze animals on sorghum grasses after a heavy frost may unknowingly expose them to cyanide poisoning.

"We usually get our heavy, killing frosts during November," said Dr. Lamar Kimbrough, forages agronomist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "Livestock producers should take special caution in choosing where their cattle graze."

Sorghum grass cells may contain prussic acid (or hydrocyanic acid), a toxic substance similar to cyanide. A killing frost can rupture plant cells, releasing the acid as a cyanide-type gas.

The gas interferes with enzyme function in cud-chewing animals. If enzyme function is disrupted, body tissues cannot use oxygen. The animal dies.

Each sorghum grass varies in its potential to contain prussic acid, Kimbrough said. Grain sorghum carries the highest potential, followed by johnson-grass, sorghum-sudangrass hybrids and sudangrass.

"Producers should be careful if they have newly frosted, stunted sorghum regrowth on which they have used a considerable amount of nitrogen fertilizer," Kimbrough said.

Sorghum grass can be safe for livestock if producers ferment them as silage, properly cure them as hay or allow them to dry down.

Kimbrough said producers can safely allow cattle to graze frosted, non-sorghum forages such as bermudagrass, bahiagrass and dallisgrass.

It may be desirable to allow cattle access to these frosted grasses while they are grazing ryegrass, small grains and legumes," he said. "This may add needed fiber to their diet."

In other agricultural news, farmers are planting winter wheat and dealing with rain problems.

"Harvest is moving really slow due to wet ground and showers," said Dexter Cochran, Lowndes County agent.

"What we need in Tallahatchie County is dry weather," said county agent Doyle Varner Jr.

When our next Congressman knocks on the President's door, will he get an answer?

A big part of any Congressman's job is making friends in high places. The kind of friends who can help him get things done for the people back home in his district.

Larkin Smith is no stranger in Washington. Congressmen and Senators know his name from his work with Capitol Hill committees. Even the President of the United States has turned to Larkin Smith for advice on waging his war on drugs.

Larkin Smith knows how to open doors in Washington. So when he goes to Congress we'll have someone representing us who can work closely with the people in charge.

On November the 8th, let's send America our best. Let's send Larkin Smith to the United States Congress.

Beautiful autumn yields bird watchers' delight

By LYDIA SCHULTZ

What a glorious day! My crepe myrtles are in full bloom. Have I got your attention? With a statement like that, I should. Crepe myrtles don't bloom this time of year. So let me explain.

The Fall has been so beautiful this year. The weather has been cooler than the last few years. I decided to make my yard check this a.m. as usual. And what a wonderful present! the Buff-bellied Hummingbird was back.

Don't know if any of you remember last year's "Buff." He was the delight of my whole year. He arrived in my yard Thanksgiving Day and joined a Black-chinned Hummingbird and two other Ruby-throated Hummingbirds to make my day one of great excitement.

On Dec. 6, those four hummers were joined by a fourth species, a probable Rufous Hummingbird to make a total of five birds and four species. The first two were new state records for Mississippi.

I wish that I could give to you some of the joy that these birds bring to me. The excitement of knowing the distances that they have traveled to bless my yard with their beauty for a short time is indescribable.

Why do I say the Buff-bellied Hummingbird is back? How do I know it is the same bird? I don't. But I can assure you that it is a safe bet. Winter hummers, or the ones from the West, that have been banded in Louisiana for easy identification consistently return to the same yards to spend the whole winter. That was a driving force for me as I did my "hummingbird gardening." The elections of my plants were geared for blooms September through the winter.

Are you still wondering how my crepe myrtles are blooming? They didn't have a blossom on them. As a matter of fact, they are rather sick. We have been so busy that they have had to thrive on neglect and are covered with aphids, a bird delicacy.

But the blooms are there in the way of birds. Every insect-eating bird has been on those trees. I have had to laugh (and don't think I'm proud of those sick trees), but I left one morning with a female American Redstart eating away. When I arrived home eight hours later, she was still eating. She'd just moved to the fourth tree!

So if you are one of the people who has wondered where your birds have gone, go outside to feel the sun and cool breeze. Take 10 or 15 minutes to "smell the roses." Listen to the bird sounds. You'll be amazed. This time of year we have an abundance of berries on lots of bushes. It's cool but not too cold. There are no young birds making demands on the adults. It's a glorious time.

Ruby-crowned and Golden-crowned Kinglets were on those poor, infamous crepe myrtles. A Blue-gray Gnatcatcher was doing its thing. Chickadees and Titmice were flurrying here and there. Wrens whizzing about busy doing something. Woodpeckers of every size and shape were calling and some tat-tatting in the pines. An American Goldfinch on that sunflower sack? Yes! Earliest date ever in my yard!

Very few birds were at my other feeders but there was a terrific amount of activity. Some high in the trees, some low. Lots were flying overhead. They just don't need my feeders right now. Maybe next month when it's colder.

"Buff" was clicking very loudly so I know we'd been joined by a second visitor, a probable Rufous Hummingbird. Both spent the afternoon sipping at all the blossoms that have been planted especially for them.

Thought for this time: (Allow me to use and add to an old cliché.) "Take time to smell the roses" and listen to the birds. Enjoy.

Tigers and Rock-A-Chaws to tangle Friday

The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws and the Bay High Tigers will finish their 1988 football seasons on Friday night when the Rocks host the Tigers at Rock-A-Chaw Stadium.

The Rocks now stand at 3-5 for the season after their convincing 36-6 victory of Pass Christian last week, while the Tigers fell to 2-7 when they dropped a 30-8 decision to Hancock North Central last Friday.

"We seem to have a little momentum back with us after our effort last week against Pass High," said Coach Ken Lyons. "I've noticed a good increase in morale, particularly our seniors who want their season to end on a winning note."

"In order to win, we need to contain Darrin Washington. He is a quick, explosive runner on their sweeps and their cross-back plays. I want to commend Coach Bob Lumpkin for the job he has done this year with his team."

Both coaches expect a very close and exciting contest which may come down to the wire. In recent years, the Rock-A-Chaws have been a powerful, ground ball game which has won both schools have enjoyed last year, the Rocks prevailed 22-14.

Kickoff for the game is 7:00 at Rock-A-Chaw Stadium.

HE PASSES, HE RUNS—Outrunning Tiger split end Travis Haynes (#16), versatile Hawks quarterback Jeff Moran (#14) in last week's game against Bay High proves he can do more than just pass by keeping the ball for a 2-point conversion. The undefeated Hawks, ranked ninth in the state, face district rivals d'Iberville Friday night to determine who will be district champions. (Echo staff photo by D.C. Harvill)

 Championship, record on line  when Hawks meet d'Iberville

BY D.C. HARVILL
The District 8 division 4-A football championship will be decided Friday night when the ninth-ranked Hancock North Central Hawks put their unbeaten record on the line at d'Iberville.

Friday's game between the Hawks and the Warriors, both already assured playoff positions, will determine the district champion and who will have the home field advantage in the opening game of the playoffs on Nov. 11. Both teams are 2-0 in district play.

The Hawks have never beaten the Warriors, according to Coach Irvin Favre of Hancock.

"There are few things we haven't achieved before; beating d'Iberville and winning the district championship are two of them," Favre said.

"Our defense, no doubt, will have to put pressure on them. They are a multiple offense team, running a variety of sets. We will have to be able to respond to each of those sets,"

Favre explained.
The Warriors have two big backs, Jerry Shoemaker and John Pickens, both at 215 pounds, who the coach thinks will prove formidable obstacles to a Hawks victory.

"If we can't stop them, we're going to have a hard time winning the game," he said.

"Offensively, we'll have to establish a good running game and do a good job of blocking. Over all, we need to go into this game with a lot of motivation. I expect our boys to fired up Friday night. We need to rise to the occasion for the 10th time. I think we're going to put out a big effort. I expect nothing less.

It's going to be a big battle over there Friday," the coach explained.

The loser will travel to the Division 6, South Jones, while the Division 6 runner-up will travel to the home field of the winner.

Kickoff is 7:30 Friday at d'Iberville.

Coach Flowers' Rotary Falcons defeated Coach Dembo's Jaguars by a score of 3-1 in a well-played offensive game. David Flowers scored the three goals for the Falcons, however, those goals were only possible by the fine passing efforts of the offense by Mark Gagnon, James Martinovich, Oliver Arce, Beau Develle, Paul Campo and Mike Flowers. rick Kimbell, Mike Gilmore, and Ben Guy. The defensive player of the week was Mike Mancuso for excellent play as goalkeeper.

PRC hoop coach hopes for early Christmas gift

Pearl River Community College head basketball coach Peter Georgian would like to receive the early Christmas gift of a new team.

Georgian, who is entering his third year as the Wildcats' coach, said he hopes that by the Christmas break his basketball squad will have gained the maturity it needs to be a contender for a playoff berth.

Seven of eight players are gone from last season's team, which put together a 12-10 record over all and a 8-6 mark in the South Division.

Among those lost players are Junior College All-American Honorable Mention selection Adrian McCray, who averaged 24 points per game and pulled down 6.2 rebounds per outing, and Thomas Foster.

Foster, who made the all-star team last season, along with McCray, averaged 12 points and 9.2 assists per game.

Despite the losses, however, Georgian said with a little more experience, his Cats may still be able to compete for a playoff berth.

"I think by Christmas time, with the type of guys that we've got, their attitude, and their determination, and the pride that they have within themselves and in our program—I think we're going to be in good shape," Georgian said.

"I think if we gain enough experience we could push for the division title," he said. "We're going to have a real respectable ball club." He said what the team lacks in experience, it makes up for in depth, size, and speed.

In the past two seasons, Georgian said, he has had six to seven people who could play. This season he may have as many as nine. "There won't be any difference in any of them," Georgian said, except for Andrew Neely, a 6-8 center from Atlanta, Ga., who will anchor the team.

"We're going to have good size inside," he said.

Wendell Carter, one of two returning sophomores on the team, will start at one forward spot, while Raymond Nash will hold the other position.

Carter, a 6-5 pre-engineering major from Atlanta, Ga., averaged 14.3 points and 7.5 rebounds a game last season. Nash is a 6-6, 200-pound freshman from St. Amant, La.

Scott Waldrop, the other returning sophomore, should get the start at one guard spot. Last season the 6-2 communication education major from Oak Grove scored 27 total points during limited playing time.

Freshman Horace Washington, 6-3 of Covington, La., and Terry Williams, 6-4, of Picayune, are expected to share time at the other guard position.

Georgian added that Eric Brister, 5-9 freshman from Bogalusa, La., Rico Foxworth, 6-1 freshman from Columbia, and Charles Kindred, 5-11 sophomore from Brooklyn, may all see extensive playing time at guard once they finish their duties as members of the Wildcat football team.

The Wildcats will kick off, what Georgian called a very tough schedule, with the Natchez Junior College Nov. 11.

"I feel like we're going to have a real competitive ball club," Georgian said. "It just kind of remains to be seen exactly how good we are going to get during the course of the season."

He said the whole team has done well in the scrimmages, except for the mistakes of youth.

Georgian said the team is turning the ball over about 24 times per game. "That's way, way, way over the limit," he said.

PRC women looking for better basketball season

Coming off a 20-9 season that ended with a trip to the playoffs, the Pearl River Community College Women's basketball team is hoping for even better things this time around.

Polly Kirkland, the Lady Wildcats' head coach said, "We should be one of the top teams in the division this year."

The Lady Cats, who will kick off their season with the Pensacola Tip Off Classic Nov. 4-5, returned four players from last year's unit, two of them starters and one who saw extensive playing time.

"We feel like we have, in a way, three starters who are returning," Kirkland said.

Antrice McGill, 6-2, from Picayune, will lead that group of returning sophomores. An All-State and All-Region player last season, McGill averaged 22.2 points and 7.8 rebounds per game for the Lady Wildcats.

Although McGill has been hampered by back and ankle problems, which forced her to miss three weeks of practice this fall, Kirkland said she is expecting another good year from the center.

She said McGill has been averaging almost 35 points through five unbeaten pre-season scrimmages.

Mary "Cocoa" Henry, a 5-6 guard from Poplarville, who averaged just under 12 points and almost six rebounds per game, will also be back this season.

Mary Arvel, a 5-6 guard from Donaldsonville, La., a reserve last year, should get a lot more court-time this season.

Edith Pedescleaux, a 5-11 freshman forward from Donaldsonville, and Charzes Silas, a 5-11 freshman forward from Hattiesburg are both expected to start.

One of the keys for the team this year, Kirkland said, will be the team not to over-rely on McGill's contributions.

She said they have already seen teams double- and triple-team McGill, and she expects more of the same during the regular season.

"They've got to believe in themselves as much as they believe in her," Kirkland said.

The squad will also have to play tougher defense.

Kirkland said during pre-season contests the Lady Cats have not been playing as well as they are capable of because of poor rebounding and weak defense.

"I think we've been getting a little lazy (rebounding)," she said, hot blocking out, or moving to the ball.

Defensively, she said, the Lady Cats may not have adjusted yet to the increased emphasis on man-to-man defense. Last season PRC played mostly zone, and many of the high school players played zone before arriving here.

Wayne Dowdy for US Senate

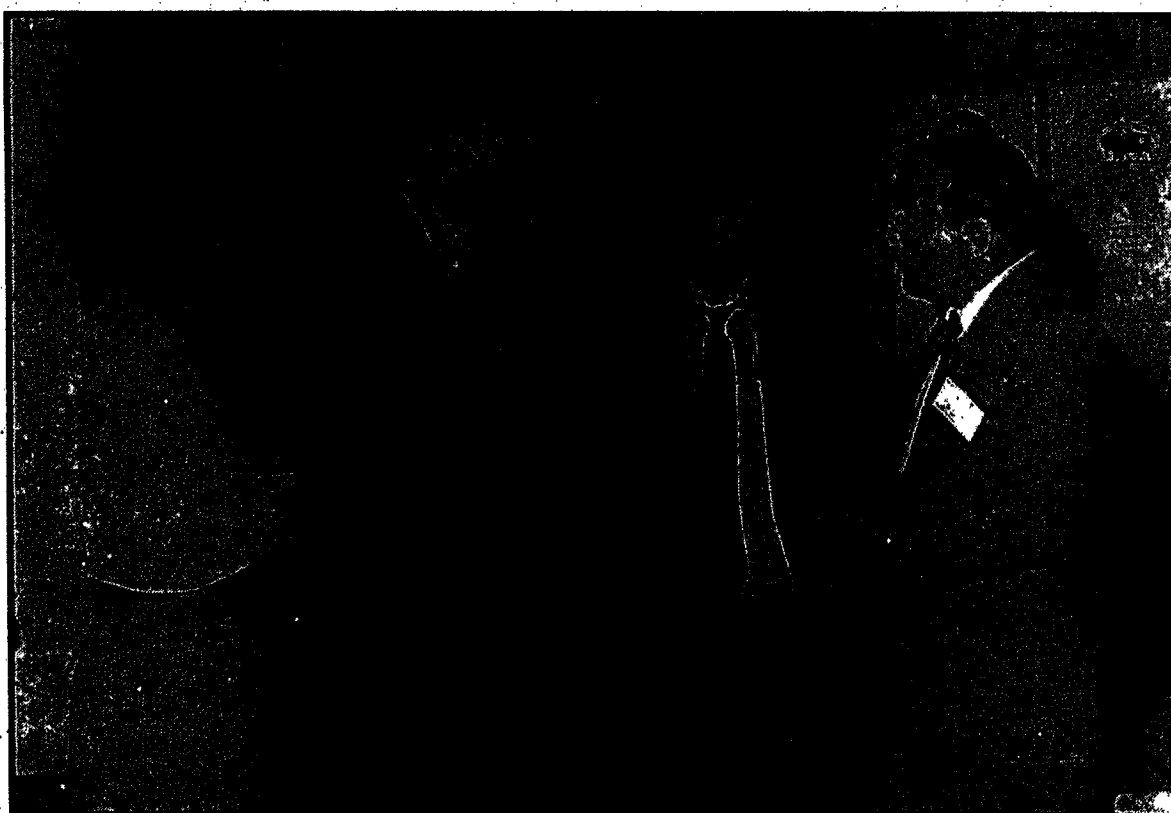

I have known Wayne Dowdy for over 20 years during which time he has served the people of Mississippi as a small town lawyer in McComb, as a Court Judge, as Mayor of McComb, and as a United States Congressman for Mississippi's Fourth Congressional District.

Wayne Dowdy is a good friend and former class mate of mine. I have closely followed his voting record and personal service to the people of Mississippi as a Congressman and have found that he always puts Mississippi's interest first.

Please consider joining me in supporting Wayne Dowdy for the United States Senate.

State Representative
J.P. COMPRETTA

I have known Wayne Dowdy for several years and proudly endorse his candidacy for the United States Senate.

I would like to ask all of my friends in Hancock County to consider Wayne Dowdy for United States Senator.

Congressman Dowdy's service to the Gulf Coast area of Mississippi as well as to the entire State of Mississippi has been invaluable.

Wildcats drop division game 17-7 to Co-Lin Wolves

Pearl River Community College dropped a 17-7 South Division game to the Co-Lin Wolves in Wesson Saturday afternoon and, in so doing, lost a sure playoff spot. The Wildcats and Wolves are now 4-1-1 in the division. The Wolves, however, have a 7-1-1 overall mark and the Cats are 5-3-1.

PRC pulling for Jones

How about this...the Pearl River College Wildcats, coaches and fans are pulling for the Jones' Bobcats.

It's not a gridiron truce. It's necessity on the part of Pearl River.

The Wildcats lost to the Co-Lin Wolves this past Saturday 17-7. Now the only way for the Wildcats to make it to the playoffs is for the Jones Bobcats to defeat the Hinds Eagles this week in Ellisville.

"It's like coming in the back door," said a very dejected PRC head coach Mike Nelson this past Monday. "But, it's a way in...the only way."

Hinds kept PRC's hopes alive when they handed the Gulf Coast Bulldogs a solid 35-6 setback. A Bulldog victory this past Saturday would have sealed the coffin on the Cats. It would also have put the 'daws in the playoffs.

All South Division games have been played except the Hinds and Jones fracas. Co-Lin is in, even though they have the same division ledger (4-1-1) as the Wildcats. Overall Co-Lin is 7-1-1 and PRC is 5-3-1.

Hinds is presently 3-0-2 in the South. A win over Jones will give the Eagles a first place finish. A loss drops them to third.

The Bobcats lost to the Wildcats 31-14 earlier in the season but they have been playing much better during the second half of the season. This past week the Bobcats handled Itawamba easily and pushed their overall mark to 5-4.

"We didn't play well at all this past week," said Nelson. "In fact, we stunk the first half."

The Wildcats were playing without the services of starting quarterback Eric Brister, who injured his right hand Thursday night.

Nelson said Brister cut his hand after falling into a plate glass window at the M. R. White Coliseum. "It was just a freak accident," said Nelson. "It was something you would never expect to happen."

Nelson said the Cats' game plan was already in place when the accident occurred. "It was just too late to change a lot of things," said Nelson.

Nelson said he thought Tony Lewis, the second string signal caller, did an adequate job under the conditions. "There are things that Lewis can do better than Brister," said Nelson. "But our game plan was with Brister. Eric has so much more speed and he has been playing all year long."

This week the Wildcats will take a long trip to the Mississippi Delta to take on the Coahoma Hinds eliminated the Gulf Coast Bulldogs from contention Saturday by winning big—35-6. The Eagles are now 3-0-2 in the division with Jones remaining on their South schedule.

The top two teams will advance, which means for Pearl River to get into the playoffs Jones must beat the Eagles this coming Saturday.

Pearl River will travel to Clarksdale to take on the winless Coahoma Tigers. It's the last regular season game of the year.

PRC's downfall this past weekend actually began this past Thursday night. Starting quarterback Eric Brister, in a freak accident, cut his hand and was forced to miss the entire game.

Second string signal-caller Tony Lewis was forced into action on Saturday. Lewis had played very little during the year.

Co-Lin led the Wildcats 7-0 until the fourth quarter when the Wildcats evened things up with a two-yard plunge by half-back Demetric Hall. Malters Scobel kicked the extra point.

PRC had threatened to score on two other occasions. Late in the second quarter the Cats fumbled inside the eight-yard line and then early in the third, the Cats came up with the ball on downs at the Wolves' 15.

Co-Lin scored early on a 31-yard pass from quarterback Doug Coleman to Edward Thompson with 2:28 to go in the first quarter. Billy Combs kicked the extra point.

After PRC tied the game in the fourth, the Wolves were facing a third and two at their own 23. Quarterback Marc Jacobs passed to Deppon Singleton for a gain of eight yards. Two Cat defenders hit the receiver at the same time.

Singleton died both tackles and raced 77 yards for the game-winning touchdown. That was the play that broke the Wildcats' back.

A little later Combs kicked a 27-yard field goal to take the contest. Captain Lincoln did have three touchdowns called back because of penalties during the afternoon.

USM wraps up bid for Independence Bowl

The University of Mississippi used Saturday's 34-27 victory over Memphis State to wrap up a 1988 bowl bid, the first for the Golden Eagles since a 1981 appearance in the (then) Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, Fla.

USM is assured of a spot in the Dec. 23 Independence Bowl in Shreveport, La., though the possibility remains that the Eagles will play elsewhere. As a part of the first-year Independence Bowl Association (IBA) and with the best record in the five-team group already locked up, the Eagles have assured themselves of the host spot in the Independence Bowl, but the IBA contract also contains a buyout option that would allow the host team to appear in a Jan. 2 game instead.

USM's chances for a Jan. 2 game will depend to some degree on the outcome of the Eagles' final two games against Auburn and Louisiana Tech, both on the road.

If a later bowl game invitation is not forthcoming, or should USM athletic officials choose not to exercise its option to accept such a bid, the Eagles will play in the Independence Bowl for the second time. USM beat McNeese State 16-14 in the 1980 game.

In the event USM plays in Shreveport, an official invitation won't be forthcoming until USM ends its season Nov. 12 and the opponent may not be known until the first date invitations are allowed under NCAA rules, Nov. 19.

It is determined on Nov. 12 that USM will play in Shreveport, ticket orders will be mailed to Eagle Club members and alumni as soon as possible. After that deadline period has passed, sales to the general public will start, and USM officials ask that those orders be limited to over-the-counter orders instead of telephone orders.

As the host team, USM will control large numbers of choice seats for the game, and these will go on sale to the general public once priority orders are filled.

"We will follow the same procedure for selling bowl tickets that we follow for selling season tickets," said USM athletic director Bill McLellan.

"We will be able to sell our fans better tickets than they would be able to purchase through the Independence Bowl, and we would encourage our fans to purchase their tickets through our ticket office. Our allotment of tickets will be sidelines tickets while any ticket purchased through the Independence Bowl by USM fans will be end zone tickets."

"It is extremely important that we sell a large number of tickets through our ticket office. It's the only way we can make the bowl appearance a profitable venture and in this way, we enhance our future bowl game and television appearance opportunities."

"We have enjoyed considerable success this season everywhere except at the gate. This was due to some extent to the weather, and the bowl game gives us the opportunity to make up for those weather problems. Again, we urge each of our fans to purchase tickets through the USM ticket office and attend the games."

"Until we sell our allotment of tickets, the game will be blacked out (television) throughout Mississippi and in Mobile, Ala., and should another area school be the second team in the Independence Bowl, that blackout area will extend to Memphis, Tenn., and the Birmingham, Ala., areas in addition to the other areas until that school sells its allotment of tickets as well."

Favre retains magic touch

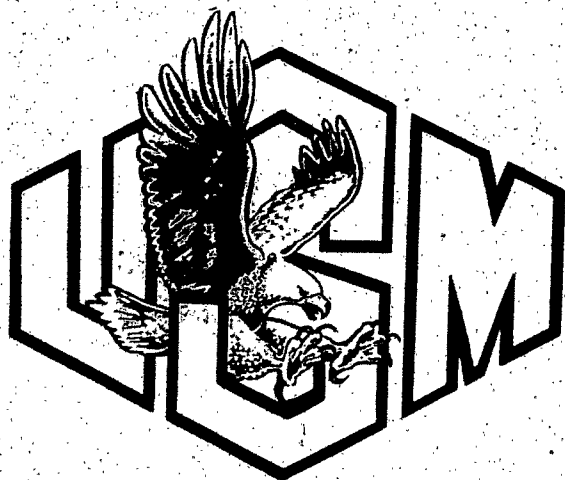

Sophomore quarterback Brett Favre turned in his seventh straight outstanding game Saturday when he completed 19 of 36 for 241 yards and a pair of TD's against Memphis State.

In that seven-game stretch, Favre has completed 116 of 188 passes for 1,621 yards and 14 TD's and has thrown only four interceptions. His career numbers now show 219 completions (5th on USM's all-time list), 443 attempts (5th), 3,164 yards (4th), and 30 TD passes (1st). His completion percentage for the last seven games stands at .617, his percentage for the year is .562 and his career percentage has improved to .494.

Favre now trails only Rick Donegan (3,753), Reggie Collier (3,662), and Jeff Bower (3,589) in career net passing yardage. He also used the Memphis State game to become only the fourth USM player ever to reach 3,000 yards and the first even to do it in just two seasons.

His 1,900 yards passing this season also is a single season record. Buddy Palazzo held the previous record with 1,888 in the '72 season.

Eagles finish home season

The University of Southern Mississippi wrapped up the home portion of its 1988 football schedule last weekend, celebrating homecoming against Memphis State, and will travel to nationally ranked Auburn this Saturday.

This will be the first meeting between USM and Auburn since 1985. Following the Auburn game, the Eagles will hit the road again to play Louisiana Tech (Nov. 12) in the final game of the season. The Nov. 12 regular season finish will be the earliest in modern history for the Eagles. The closest date to that mark was a Nov. 13 finish in 1965, ironically at Louisiana Tech.

With the win at Southwestern Louisiana, USM coach Curley Hallman became the first-ever rookie Golden Eagle coach to go 7-1 in his first eight games. Thad (Pie) Vann and Reed Green both posted 6-1 marks before losing for the second time in the eighth game of the season.

Auburn leads the series with USM 21-3-0. Auburn won the 1985 meeting 29-14 after USM had taken a 3-0 lead on Rex Banks' 37-yard field goal. Current pro football/baseball standout Bo Jackson scored twice and had 205 of Auburn's 274 rushing yards for the day. USM led in passing yardage 260-118 in the game, but managed only 85 rushing yards.

Ninth year head coach Pat Dye returns 32 lettermen, including 11 starters from last year's team that posted a 9-1-2 record and earned a trip to the Sugar Bowl.

USM continues to get outstanding performances from such players as quarterback Brett Favre who holds the Golden Eagles record for touchdown passes (28 through the Southwestern Louisiana game), and who also continues to move up various other career passing lists. Backup tailback Ricky Bradley leads the team in rushing and Shelton Gandy is close behind. Bradley rushed for his second straight 100-plus yard game against Southwestern Louisiana.

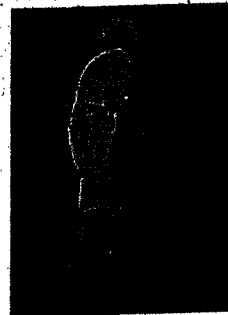

Tickets to the Auburn game as well as the Louisiana Tech game are on sale at the athletic ticket office located in Green Coliseum on the USM campus.

FISHIN' TIPS FROM THE HUMMINBIRD PROS

by Larry Colombo

With the holidays fast approaching, now is an excellent time to pick out one or two of those new, innovative product ideas and drop the hint.

Ice fishing season will soon dominate the northern angler's activities. Those fresh caught fish taken through the ice will rate as excellent table fare. Catch 'em, clean 'em and eat 'em fresh for best flavor.

If you freeze your filets, use a milk carton and completely cover the filets with water. Place in the freezer and the flavor will be preserved when frozen solid. This method also prevents freezer burn on your catch.

Since the weather could keep some fishermen close to home this winter, now is also a great time to organize tackle and secure topographic maps for next season's trips. Topo maps are available from the Army Corps of Engineers, from the U.S. Geological Survey and for many lakes are commercially printed.

This is also the best time of year to build man-made structure. Lakes which experience annual drawdown can be worked from the shoreline. Northern lakes which freeze over can be easily planted by moving tires, trees or brush onto the ice, set in position and anchored together. When the ice thaws, the structure sinks into place, providing an excellent spot to catch fish year around. Line up the structure so you will be able to return to the spot in the spring and find it with your depth sounder.

Tips from the Humminbird Pros are presented by Humminbird, Eufaula, Alabama. Good Fishing with America's #1 Depth Sounder.

Heart Answers

Aneurysm

An aneurysm is the result of a weakening of the wall of an artery which balloons out in a bubble-like protrusion. It may rupture under the pressure of blood flow—this could cause sudden, potentially fatal loss of blood, or stroke if it occurs in the brain. Aneurysms may develop in any artery, but the abdominal aorta is the most common site. If the aneurysm progressively increases in size, it should be removed despite the risk. Treatment involves surgical removal of the aneurysm and replacement of that section of the artery with a graft.

CCCC hopes for winning season

A winning season is about all Gulf Coast Community College can hope for after losing 35-6 last week to Hinds in a game that cost the Bulldogs a berth in the state football playoffs.

"We went from a chance to be champions to nothing," said Bulldog Coach George Sekul. "We are trying to regroup for our homecoming game Saturday with the East Mississippi Lions," Sekul said. "They are one of the best teams in the league." Gametime is at 3 p.m. in A.L. May Memorial Stadium at Perkinston.

The 5-4 Bulldogs, accused by Sekul of throwing in the towel in the Hinds game, "have got to do better to beat East Mississippi."

The Scooba-based Lions are 6-3 overall and third in the North Division behind first place Northwest and runner-up Holmes.

"They're not in the playoffs but they are good enough to be," Sekul said.

He said the Lions mount a versatile offense led by quarterback Greg Cash. "They run everything, including the wish-bone and a 'no-running-back' formation where all runners are receivers."

Sekul noted that East Mississippi is coached by J. C. Arban, former head coach at Pearl River Community College.

Recapping the Hinds game, Sekul described it as "a total team loss for the Bulldogs," now 5-4 on the season.

"After Hinds went ahead 17-6, we just threw in the towel," Sekul admitted. "It was a big disappointment for us, just as it was last year when they beat us 35-6."

Hinds now is in a position to be South Division champions if the Eagles beat Jones this week. Cophia-Lincoln, the team the Bulldogs beat 27-10 two weeks ago, is a strong contender for the No. 2 spot. Pearl River also is still in the running.

Sekul predicted the Bulldogs "will be up for East Mississippi. It's homecoming, and it's our final game of the season. I don't believe our players are willing to settle for a 5-5 record," he added.

Scottish Society to host Highland Games Nov. 19

The fourth annual Gulf Coast Highland Games will be Nov. 19 at Hiller Park in Biloxi from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

A Ceilidh (pronounced 'Kay-Lee') will be held at the host hotel, the Biloxi Hilton, beginning at 7 p.m. the night of the 19th.

The games are sponsored by the Scottish Society of the Gulf Coast and the City of Biloxi. They have proven to be a popular event on the Gulf Coast during the month of November, with an estimated attendance of 3,000 at the 1987 games. This uniquely Scottish event has twice been voted one of the Top 20 Events in the Southeast.

Scheduled participants include bag pipe bands, Highland dancers, Scottish country dancer, and exhibitions of Scottish athletic events. For those interested in their ancestry, the Genealogical Society will be providing access to their records.

Several vendors of Scottish wares, including kilt-makers, will participate. Vendors of Scottish, British and other international foods will also be present.

There will be competitions in Highland dancing, piping and drumming, and in amateur athletics. The drumming judge will be Bert Barr, an international famous drummer in Scottish circles from Scotland. The piping judge will be Ozzie Reid, himself internationally famous as a superior piper. The champion dancer and teacher, Sandra Weyman, hailing from Firless, Pa., will be the dancing judge.

There will also be clinics for piping and drumming conducted by the judges. There will be an athletics demonstration by Tom Carmichel, who will supervise an amateur athletic competition. He hails from Knoxville, Tenn. and competes as a professional in Scottish athletics.

Drawn by the skirl of the pipes, Scots from all over the country will gather to represent their clans. Wearing of the tartan and kilts will be the order of the day.

Entertainment for the Ceilidh will be provided by numerous people. The master of ceremonies will be Alex Beaton. Beaton is a renowned Scottish entertainer and performer and will be sure to make this Ceilidh one to be remembered.

For information contact Larry McIntosh, publicity chairman, 435-3610, 203 Garfield Ave., Biloxi, 39531 or Charles Bratt, games chairman, 769-7480, P.O. Box 1557, Pascagoula, 39567.

Scout leaders push for participation

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Local Boy Scout leaders are formulating plans to get more boys and leaders involved in Scouting activities.

Several meetings have been held by local leaders in recent months to discuss means of better serving the young boys of the area.

One of the main interests of the group is to form a Hancock County district which will still be a part of the Cypress District.

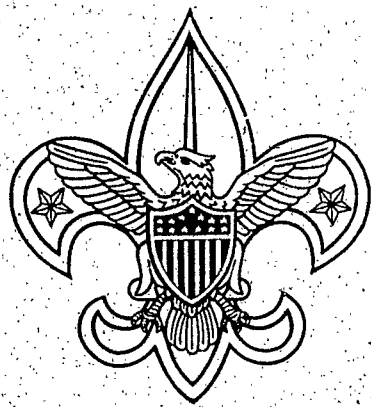

Hancock County's is under the New Orleans Area Boy Scouts of America Council, and Ron Hegwood, Scout Executive, is scheduled to meet with local grade 12; Employer Scouts, Varsity and Sea Scouts are aged 14 through 21.

In Hancock County there are several Cub Packs, Scout Troops, two Employer Posts and one Varsity Scout team.

FARM NEWS

FmHA states

Farmers claiming losses must carry insurance

Farmers who plan to put in winter crops with Farmers Home Administration emergency loans based on this year's drought should take steps immediately to see if they need crop insurance for 1989 crops, according to John H. Arthur, FmHA state director for Mississippi.

The Disaster Assistance Act of 1988 requires any farmers with a production loss exceeding 65 percent of normal to agree to purchase insurance for 1989 crops, with some exceptions, as a condition for obtaining an FmHA emergency loan to help cover 1988 losses, Arthur said.

The open season for obtaining multi-peril crop insurance for winter crops expires Oct. 31, except in certain northwestern states where it is Nov. 30, leaving farmers little time to obtain insurance.

Although some extensions to the deadline may be granted on an individual basis, Arthur said. Farmers should get in touch with their local insurance representatives without delay. Proof of insurance will be required before disaster loan application can be processed. Exceptions to the insurance requirement include cases where insurance is not available and where premiums costs would impose an undue financial hardship as determined by the FmHA County Committee.

If you participate in certain USDA programs, then you should be aware that benefits may be denied if you are farming highly erodible land or wetlands.

The Food Security Act imposes restrictions on persons who participate in certain USDA programs and who plant agricultural commodities on highly erodible land, or wetland that has been converted to cropland after Dec. 23, 1985.

Highly erodible land that was not cropped during 1981-1985 must have a conservation plan and needed conservation practices in place before planting.

Other highly erodible land must have a conservation plan developed by Jan. 1, 1990 and all conservation practices installed by Jan. 1, 1995 in order to remain eligible for USDA program benefits.

If you participate in USDA programs, check with your ASCS Office to request a determination of highly erodible lands and wetlands present on your farm.

If it is determined that highly erodible lands or wetlands are present on your farm, a conservation plan will be needed. Contact your local Soil Conservation office and arrange to have someone assist you in making this plan. Do not wait until the last minute.

If you wait, the Soil Conservation Service personnel may not get to you before Jan. 1, 1990. Don't risk losing your benefits.

Soil, conservation commissioners elected

The Hancock County Soil and Water Conservation District held its election on Oct. 13. The newly elected commissioners are Jerry Ladner representing Beat 1; Hildon Shaw was re-elected representing Beat 4; and David (Pete) Speights, representing Beat 5.

Other members of the HCSWCD include Frank Lee, treasurer; R. B. Shaw Jr., vice-chairman; James (Sammy)

Eastridge, Al Wittorf and Archie Courge Jr., deputy commissioners.

The members of the Hancock County Soil and Water Conservation District wish to thank all those who voted.

The aim of the district is to develop new ideas and further the cause of conservation education in this area by making more people aware of the district and the job we are here to do.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

By Lee Taylor

Many producers just don't realize what their timber is worth. Timber is taken for granted in a lot of instances and is not managed like our other agricultural enterprises. The land owner usually loses money when this happens.

With just a little effort a timber owner can receive help from several resources. They include the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, Mississippi Forestry Commission, and the Soil Conservation Service and ASCS. These agencies can give a land owner advice both educational and technical to better manage his or her timber.

Literature is available in our office to show you how to properly thin your pine stand. If you wish to get an idea on establishing the volume of timber you have on your property, we have information on that topic also.

If you plan to make a timber sale, it's best to advertise for competitive bids. Should you not feel comfortable in bidding off your timber, you might want to hire a consultant forester.

Another good source of information in selling timber is the county forester. He can supply you with lists of buyers, sample contracts, and can offer advice concerning the actual sale. For a modest fee he can assist in marking a stand for thinning and will give you a volume estimate on the tract.

The main idea to remember about timber is that it's a crop just like soybeans or corn. Trees need to be managed to receive maximum income.

WEB SPINNERS

We've had a great many calls again this year on web spinners. There are five insects that spin spider-like webs around the trunk and limbs of oak trees and shrubs. These insects do not harm the tree as they are only feeding on decaying organic matter.

If you want to remove them you can use malathion or diazinon. If you choose not to treat them, webs will eventually break apart and disappear.

Inventors Seminar slated

Paula Helwick Seminars will host their second Inventors Seminar for the Gulf Coast area the weekend of Nov. 11-12. The seminar, entitled "So You Think You've Got A Million-Dollar Idea," consists of two separate phases and will be held at Jefferson Davis Junior College in Biloxi.

Phase I, entitled "Stimulating the Creative Mind," will include such topics as: Ways to stimulate creativity, checklist for product ideas, an extensive resource guide, and ideas for much-needed inventions.

Phase II, entitled "Getting Down to Business," will include such topics as market research, developing a prototype, patent-ing your product, and marketing your invention, as well as featuring four local guest speakers: Alex Norcross, patent attorney; Clay Griffith, with The Technology Transfer Center at Stennis Space Center; Dottie Overal, with the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA); and Suzette Montgomery, a local certified public accountant.

A Gulfport native, Helwick is presently under contract with The Greater Biloxi Economic Development Foundation to get several of her product ideas on the market.

For more information call Paula Helwick Seminars at 896-6449.

GOOD FOOD BUYS

Interesting variations of staples

By Ann O. Rushing
Does mealtime get monotonous? Try some of the following ideas to add interest and variety to everyday foods.

For lunch or dinner, make a low-cost, easy-to-prepare salad or dessert out of fruit. Don't just serve it for breakfast!

Bake apples the night before and store in the refrigerator for an easy dessert the next night.

For vitamin A include dark-green and deep-yellow vegetables such as spinach and carrots. Or serve cantaloupes, yellow peaches and apricots.

Make a nutritious easy-to-fix main dish salad with spinach leaves, torn in bite-sized pieces; and add sliced green onion, crumbled bacon bits and chopped hard-cooked egg. Serve with your favorite dressing. Dieters may prefer just a sprinkling of lemon juice.

Add dried herbs to vegetables at the beginning of the cooking period. Lima beans with marjoram or sage, snap beans with basil or dill, broccoli with tarragon, or cabbage with caraway seed are all good combinations.

Pep up your morning—and your scrambled eggs with bits of fresh bean sprouts, sliced water chestnuts and a little chopped onion and green pepper. Add a dash of soy sauce, if you like. Vegetables can be fun for breakfast!

For a nutritious, economical sandwich, spread to perk up lunch time, mix chunky peanut butter (1 cup), chopped raisins (1 cup), and shredded carrot (1/2 cup) for six snappy sandwiches.

For supper try hearty vegetable soup, along with fruit salad and hot rolls.

If you're watching your weight, sprinkle lemon juice or herb vinegar on broiled vegetables for seasoning, instead of butter or margarine.

When baking acorn squash halves, add a sprinkle of cinnamon for new zest.

Enjoy dark-green leafy vegetables, raisins or prunes and get an extra bonus of iron.

Turn an ordinary meal into a party by serving attractive raw vegetables relished with a yogurt or sour cream dip, instead of salad.

For a brunch or afternoon coffee party enjoy serving attractive raw vegetable relishes with yogurt or sour cream dip, instead of salad.

For a brunch or afternoon coffee party, don't make all the refreshments sweet or starchy. Try banana chunks dipped in lemon juice and rolled in finely chopped nuts. Spear on toothpicks. Or, dip unpared apple rings and pear wedges in lemon juice and spread with a mixture of blue cheese and softened cream cheese.

Add vitamin C from oranges, grapefruit, strawberries, cantaloupe, broccoli, cabbage, spinach, peppers, white and sweet potatoes, and tomatoes.

If you're tired of the usual salads, try scooping out tomatoes and adding a combination of drained whole-kernel corn, chopped onion and green pepper and the salad dressing of your choice.

Off-season vegetables offer mix of quality

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

A couple of weeks ago I wrote about the health and life-threatening dangers involved with eating wild mushrooms. Just recently I heard of an incident of mass poisoning of people in an eastern European country from eating wild mushrooms. The danger is there, and people do get poisoned! I mentioned my article on wild mushrooms to a friend, and she admitted to gathering and eating wild mushrooms, but only those types she had learned about as a child in Europe.

When asked about her fear of getting poisoned, she said she picked only those types she was sure of but then admitted to suffering occasional bouts of diarrhea. It sounds like wild mushroom-related poisoning to me, and diarrhea is a mild symptom. Permanent organ damage and death are possible.

On another subject; as our gardens become less productive and we turn to the grocery store for fresh fruits and vegetables, there are some bits of information you may find interesting. These tidbits come from the Packer, the national weekly business newspaper of the fruit and vegetable industry.

Did you know that the average produce item moves 1,900 miles from its source to you, and the United States imports about $2 billion worth of fruits and vegetables and exports more than $1.5 billion worth a year?

How about this piece of information? When you, the consumer, go to the grocery store you are confident of finding apples, bananas, oranges, seedless grapes, carrots, potatoes, iceberg lettuce and celery of consistent quality week after week. But, you have considerable less confidence in finding consistent quality in peaches, strawberries, melons, pears, tomatoes, sweet corn and asparagus. That 1,900 mile trip obviously has some impact here. While apples were selected by survey respondents as the most consistent fruit, peaches were selected as the least consistent. The most consistent fresh vegetable was carrots, and the least consistent was tomatoes.

Halloween pumpkin prices in the stores this year may be up because of drought- and disease-related yield reductions in major Midwest production areas.

Rutabaga supplies will be lower and prices higher as a result of a major drought in North America's primary rutabaga producing area. Yields have been reduced by as much as 40 percent, and come Thanksgiving, a big rutabaga day, you can look for elevated prices.

How we lower the risk of high-risk pregnancy.

In increasing numbers, women are waiting longer to have children. So taking better care throughout pregnancy is more important than ever. Age, however, is not the only cause of high-risk pregnancy. Diabetes, high blood pressure, toxemia, and difficulties in previous pregnancy add to the risk.

Announcing our new High-Risk Pregnancy Program.

Leading perinatologists from Tulane University Medical Center join us at Slidell Memorial every week to conduct seminars, classes, and meetings, and conduct amniocentesis testing and ultrasound imaging. Special medical support and counseling with patients help lower high risk throughout pregnancy.

Staff obstetrician monitors the pulse of pregnancy care.

Our staff obstetrician and NICU staff oversee amniocentesis, ultrasound imaging, and premature labor contraction monitoring, as well as other important tests. Slidell Memorial also offers a variety of nutrition, fitness, and OB/Gyn programs for the expectant mother.

And when the time for delivery arrives, Slidell Memorial's special transport team will get you to the hospital as soon as possible. Partnership with Tulane and local coordination of all high-risk pregnancy care programs are just two of the ways we lower the risk of high-risk pregnancy and maximize the hope of healthy children.

HALLOWEEN TEACHERS—Several Bay Senior High School teachers wore costumes to school for classes on Halloween. The teachers collected funds to help defray expenses for Carl Major, Bay High band member and senior, who will perform in New York City with the McDonald's All-American Band in Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

Bay High senior to perform in McDonald's All-American Band

When Carl Major appears on New York City's famed Broadway this Thanksgiving, he's going to turn some heads...about 80 million of them.

The reason? Carl will be marching down the Great White Way with the 1988 McDonald's All-American High School Band in the nationally televised Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

Major, a senior at Bay Senior High School and resident of Waveland, was selected to play percussion in the McDonald's All-American Band. Robert Gillmore II is director of the Bay Senior High School Band.

Selected from some 4,000 nominees nationwide, Carl joins Bryan Carlock of Clinton as the two musicians chosen to represent Mississippi in the McDonald's band. The 104-member McDonald's All-American Band is comprised of the top two high school musicians from each state and the District of Columbia, plus one member each from Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

"The advanced ability displayed in these All-American band members is just tremendous," said Dr. William Foster, director of the All-American band and director of bands at Florida A & M University. "It's a great compliment to their band directors for nurturing and developing these wonderful young talents."

The McDonald's All-American Band was created 22 years ago by McDonald's founder Ray A. Kroc to reward talented high school musicians with the same "All-American" status generally reserved for athletes. An entirely new band is selected each year, based on nominations by high school band directors throughout the country.

In addition to rehearsing during the band's week-long stay in the Big Apple, McDonald's will treat band members to a Broadway play and a tour of Battery Park and the Statue of Liberty. Band members will also perform a special dress rehearsal in New York's famed Central Park.

Band members will return home following their Thanksgiving Day performance, but will join ranks again on the West Coast for holiday appearances in the Fiesta Bowl and 100th Anniversary Tournament of Roses Parades.

McDonald's is the world's leading quick service restaurant organization, serving 22 million people each day in more than 10,000 restaurants in 50 countries. Seventy-five percent of McDonald's restaurants are locally operated by independent entrepreneurs.

Youth exchange program is step toward world peace

This being an election year, the world's attention focuses on the United States watching Americans gather together as a nation to choose their next president. As American, one of the major issues we are concerned about is world peace.

Your family can take an active role in the pursuit of world peace by becoming involved in foreign student exchange. Hosting a foreign exchange student through the Youth Exchange Service will educate your family about intercultural understanding.

YES' highly seasoned staff and local community representatives are fully prepared to introduce your family to the experience of hosting an international high school student.

YES' teenage 'ambassadors' are well educated individuals, eager to share their country's culture and customs as they learn about the American way of life. These youngsters are covered by comprehensive medical/accident insurance and they provide their own spending money.

Take an active stand towards world peace, investigate hosting a foreign exchange student today. For complete details about the YES program, a non-profit organization, call toll-free, 800-848-2121.

The Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs has been awarded a grant of nearly $15,000 from the National Science Foundation on behalf of the Southern Association of Marine Laboratories.

The $14,995 grant will be used for a program to increase minority presence in the marine sciences. Dr. Harold D. Howse, GCRL director, and Dr. Dirk Frankenberg, marine science director at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, are principal investigators for the effort, which will involve 28 SAML member laboratories from North Carolina to Texas.

Dr. Thomas D. McIlwain, assistant director for fisheries research and management at GCRL, is heading a three-year, life-history study of red drum populations in the Gulf of Mexico. Dr. Stuart G. Poss, GCRL systematic zoology head, is examining differences in growth and movement with the species. A $45,000 grant awarded by the National Marine Fisheries Service funds the two projects.

Dr. Thomas Lytle, GCRL analytical chemistry section head, and Dr. Julia Lytle, GCRL environmental chemistry section head, reported on their research of fatty acid and cholesterol content of Gulf of Mexico fish at the 13th Annual Tropical and Subtropical Fisheries Technological Conference Oct. 16-19 in Gulf Shores, Ala.

Dr. Thomas Lytle and Dr. Julia Lytle presented a paper on pollution and pollution transport in Mississippi's harbors and ports at the 11th Annual Conference of the Coastal Society Oct. 22-26 in Boston, Mass.

He co-chaired the 'Metazoan Parasitic Diseases Section' with Dr. C. Combes of Université de Perpignan, France, and presented introductory remarks.

Dr. Sharon H. Walker, coordinator of educational programs at GCRL's J. L. Scott Marine Education Center, attended the 17th Annual Conference of the North American Association for Environmental Education Oct. 14-19 in Orlando, Fla. She staffed a booth that offered information on environmental programs at GCRL, USM's Hattiesburg campus and the USM Center for Marine Science at the Stennis Space Center.

Dr. Ervin G. Otyos, head of the GCRL geology section, spoke on the Pliocene Age of coastal units in the northeastern Gulf of Mexico at the Oct. 21 meeting of the Gulf Coast Association of Geological Societies in New Orleans. His paper on the subject was published in the September 1988 Bulletin of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

Howse attended a meeting of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Gulf of Mexico Initiative Technical Steering Committee Oct. 17-19 at the Stennis Space Center in Hancock County.

GCRL has received a $2,800 contract from New York's Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Institute to analyze fatty acids in rodent diets over a seven-month period for ongoing colon cancer research. According to Dr. Julia S. Lytle, head of the environmental chemistry section at GCRL, the tests will include comparing rodents that are fed high fat diets, some with Omega-3 fatty acids from fish oils and some with Omega-6 fatty acids found in plants and grain-fed animals.

GCRL employees involved in the First Annual Point Cadet Kid's Day Fishing Rodeo, sponsored by the Friends of the Marine Education Center and other local organizations, include: Errol White, assistant curator of the MEC; Dr. Adrian Lawler, aquarium supervisor; Bruce Comyns, research associate; Robert Westbrook, aquarist; Tony Hyde, field sampler; Joanne Bosarge, MEC secretary; and Chris, Lagarde, Leslie Bruce and Jim Weston, biotechnicians.

GCRL fisheries staff attending the fall meeting of the Gulf States Marine Fisheries Commission in San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 18-20 included Dr. McIlwain, assistant director for fisheries research and management; Dr. Joanne Lyczkowski-Schultz, assistant biologist; Larry Nicholson and Dick Waller, associate biologists; and John Cirino, fisheries biotechnician.

Howse and McIlwain, attended the fall meeting of Southern Association of Marine Laboratories Oct. 25-27 at the University of Texas Marine Science Institute at Port Aransas. Harriet Perry, associate biologist in the GCRL fisheries section will deliver a paper to the 41st annual meeting of the Gulf and Caribbean Fisheries Institute Nov. 6-11 in St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands. The paper "Soft Crab Fisheries: Potential for Caribbean Development," was co-authored by Christine Trigg, GCRL fisheries research associate, and Phillip Steele of the Florida Department of Natural Resources.

The state Bureau of Marine Resources in Long Beach and the GCRL in Ocean Springs will join forces to develop a coordinated database for management of the fishery resources with an emphasis on the National Marine Fisheries Service.

The 12-month effort, which began this month under the direction of Dr. Richard E. Hight, of BMR and McIlwain, will identify all existing biological, chemical, physical, economic, social and other applicable databases that relate to Mississippi's marine fishery resources.
